Frederick Douglass was an intelligent, thoughtful, and talented person. Douglass's life was filled with intriguing events. Douglass was challenged throughout his entire life. Some examples of Douglass's life events include, escaping slavery, becoming an abolitionist, and hero. He inspired many people to overcome obstacles. Douglass's life was interesting, and filled with exciting events.

Douglass's life was interesting in many ways. His accomplishments were interesting. How he learned, where he learned, and how he taught himself to read was also interesting. He used creativity and his intelligence in interesting ways. The events of his life were intriguing.

While Douglass had many exciting life events, the event that was most intriguing was when he escaped slavery. Another exciting event was when he talked about learning to read. An intriguing event was when he became an active member of a Black Abolitionist group. These events were intriguing because he had the guts to try risky endeavors, and do all that was necessary to accomplish his goals.

Douglass inspired people because he did things that were not supposed to be done by an African American male. His most difficult challenge was escaping slavery. Another risk that he took was learning to read. To this date, he has inspired people all over the world. Frederick Douglass will always be an inspiration to other people.

Lastly, the life of Douglass was engaging, exciting and intriguing. I found Frederick Douglass's life story to be one of the most interesting that I have read because it is filled with many interesting events. How can I become an interesting figure like Douglass? I wish I had an exciting life that inspired people to be all that they could be. I can't imagine being like Frederick Douglass.
